VOICES OF CREATIVITY: SPOTLIGHT ON CEC POETRY CONTEST

Celebrating the Talent and Engagement of Our Residential Clients

Last month, the Client Experience Committee (CEC) hosted a poetry contest, inspiring our residential clients to express themselves creatively. We're thrilled to share the winning poem below - a powerful piece that reflects the unique voices within our community.

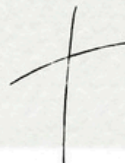

Thank you to the CEC for organizing meaningful events like this, which foster creativity and connection.

"Bad Dreams"

I had a bad nightmare, but it was only a dream. You wouldn't believe some of the things I had seen. There were sticks and stones, that were tossed. They were all directed at a man on a cross. This man had thorns on his head and tears on his face. There was violence and chaos all over the place. Some people laughed; some people cried. Some told the truth but there were others who lied. This man helped the blind and also raised the dead. Wherever he went demons had fled. He looked into the crowd and felt no shame. They blasphemed his father and mocked his name. Come down here father for you have treasures to bring. Just prove to them all you are truly our king. Everyone laughed when God didn't move. They thought this man was a liar and they had no more to prove. Who is this man, who can't save his own life? He bleeds like us all when cut with a knife. Blood mixed with tears as thy fell to the ground. This man had nothing to say as he looked all around. Before he said his last words, he gazed through the crowd. He looked towards the sky then shouted out loud, "Forgive them father, for they do not know what they have done." All of a sudden, his body went limp, and they thought they had won. The sky turned black, the earth started shaking and began to crack. Some fell to their kneed, some of them ran. Some begged for forgiveness, it was all in his plan. When I woke up, I was covered in sweat. I was thinking about Jesus and knew we had just met. When I listen with my heart, I can still hear his voice. "It's all up to you, I give you the choice." He loves us all dearly, he truly does care. He owns God's vast kingdom and he's willing to share. But to receive his gift you must give him all your trust, and he believes this man gave his own life to save all of us.

Amen.
